New: The Lyseo I from Bürstner, the homely integrated model in the mid-range price segment

In time for the start of the new season, Bürstner presents the new Fiat Ducato based integrated model Lyseo I, which closes the gap in its mid-range price segment offer. This new Bürstner model range is characterised by high-quality features, a homely interior design concept and outstanding ergonomics.

Kehl. "We wanted to build a vehicle that is suitable for use all year round, has a homely interior and offers outstanding ergonomics that would appeal to target groups who value their home comforts," says Jens Kromer, Managing Director of Bürstner GmbH & Co. KG. He is enthusiastic about the new model range. From the model year 2023 onwards, the new Lyseo I will be available in a choice of five different layouts, with all standard versions designed to seat and sleep four people, and with a comfortable interior headroom height of 1.98 m. The base chassis is a Fiat Ducato 2.3 MultiJet with a 138 bhp engine and automatic transmission, a large windscreen, integrated LED daytime running light spots and headlight housings in a contrasting colour, bus mirrors, a cab door on the left-hand side as well as height-adjustable and tiltable swivel seats.

On the inside, the new Lyseo I impresses with a homely habitation concept: The furniture comes in the plain and wood finish combination Sandy Grey, and there's a choice of five upholstery fabrics. The comfortable electric drop-down bed above the cab with a slatted base frame ensures that you get a good night's sleep. Thanks to a modified mechanism, it is raised and lowered in parallel to the front windscreen, thereby offering additional living and storage space. Also comfortable are the single beds (I 690 G, I 726 G and I 727G) with comfortably positioned ergonomic steps and high-quality cold foam mattresses, slatted bases included. The practical sliding mechanism between the beds makes it possible to extend the sleeping area. The queen-size bed (I 736) can also be ordered with an electric height adjustment mechanism as an optional extra.

Depending on the layout, Bürstner offers different solutions, from a rear lounge (I 744), i.e., a large, comfortable corner suite with a functional sideboard and a swivel tabletop, space for a 32" TV set, a sliding door and a standard drop-down bed above the lounge to a variable settee-settee solution (I 727 G and I 736) in the front area of the vehicle.

The Lyseo I's kitchen is equipped with large soft-close drawers and cupboards. It offers plenty of worktop space and other usable areas, as well as a 145l refrigerator that includes a 15l freezer compartment as a standard feature. The kitchen can be perfected with optionally available accessory components such as a Triplex cooker and an extractor fan.

The Lyseo I offers two different washroom solutions: A Vario washroom (I 690 G + I 726 G), which comes with a backlit mirror and a swivel dividing wall that conceals a large shower, and a completely separate washroom (I 727 G, I 736 G and I 744) with a large, separate shower, a backlit handheld shower head and hose unit and a separate toilet area.

"To ensure that buyers who value their home comforts also feel comfortable in the Lyseo I, the washroom, bed and living area accesses are particularly generously-sized," adds Bürstner's sales director Markus Pangerl. All shelves and storage compartments are easy to access and arranged in an ergonomic way, also in the rear. According to Pangerl, these are important purchasing criteria for buyers who are used to comfort. The vehicle always comes with a functional Thermo-Floor sandwich floor throughout that not only provides good insulation but also plenty of easily accessible storage space. The Lyseo I is therefore also perfectly equipped for the colder times of the year. Customers can optionally order a wet central heating system as an extra. A wide gas bottle box at an ergonomic height makes it easy to load the vehicle. The Bürstner Service Unit makes it possible to always keep an eye on all technical parameters.
